GEOLOGICAL SURVEY.

Having been commissioned by his Excellency the Governor to make a Geological Survey of Vermont, I venture to ask the co-operation of my fellow citizens in a measure so intimate. by connected with their presperity. In each town gentlemen can, with little effort, communicate information, which may prove valuable to their towns and to the public generally.

In a few weeks I intend to commence the ld labor, as will also my assistants, and we hope in the course of the summer to pass over most of the State, making a general reconnuistions of such objects as they may deem interest-

I would especially request of the proprie ors of heds and ores, and of marble, soanstone, or ser pentine quarries, fair specimens of these substances, (since they will come under the obser-vation of the public generally,)* or at least one good specimen for the State collection.

I also request gentlemen to furnish me, in writing, with such statistics, as they may be willing to make public, of the amount of fron, manganese, copperas, lime, marble, soapstone, serpentine, &c., obtained during the last and previous years, of the expense, profits, improvmodes of quarrying, or other valuable modes E'ds are respectfully requested to give this address an insertion.

C. B. ADAMS, State Geologist.

*Specimens of common minerals, rocks, marbles, &c., may be four inches long, three inches wide, and one or two thick, unless a larger size may be necessary for a fair exhibition. The size and form of extrable specimens must depend on the character of the mineral. In all cases they should be kept free from bruises and scratches, and carefully wrapped in papers with labels indicating their locality and the name of the donor.

LITERARY NOTICES.

The American Review; a Whig Journal of Politics, Literature, Art and cience, April, 1845.—Of the general character of this work we have already expressed our opinion of deci-ded approbation. There is no falling off in the present number from the interest of its prede-cessors. The first article, entitled "The late Chief Executive," is a summary history of Mr Tyler's Presidential career, written with candor and vouched for by some important docu-ments, which we are glad to see thus on record. This is as it should be. Violent phillipies and viterperative party slang should be left-we had almost said to the meaner organs of the respec-tive parties; but we would rather say banish hem entirely from the columns of all alike .-Our political literature is anything but credita-ble. There is too much ground for the censures ble. There is too much ground for the censures which have of late been made upon our political presses generally by a distinguished critic across the water. Nor can we retaliate with the argumentum ad hominem. Whatever may be said of British party papers to their disadvantage, so far as we are acquainted, they at least wear the sask of decemps, and for the most part discovery. arb of decency, and for the most part discover garb of decency, and for the most part discover a far better acquaintance with the matters dis-cussed than we can pretend to. There may perhaps be causes for this but these we are not now going to discuss. There is at all events no reason why men who aspire to be public teachers should not be decent, intelligent and no reason why men who aspire to be public teachers should not be decent, intelligent and gentlemanly. There is such a thing as face-in formally and there is no necessary connexion between severity and necessary connexion between severity and blackguardism. But it is too true that the worse blackguardism. But it is too true that the worse blackguardism. But it is too true that the worse passes too currently for the better amongst us. Specimens of any of these substances will be very acceptable, and since it may be expected that sets of specimens will be furnished to several literary institutions and to the medical colleges in the State, as well as to the State itself, several of a sort are desired. SEEDLING STRAWBERRY. HE subscriber has on hand a few hundred plants of the above valuable Strawberry, just received by express fresh from the garden of Philetus Phillips, Esq., of New York.
HOVEY'S SEEDLING was raised by artificial HOVEY'S SEEDLING was raised by artificial impreghation in 1833. It is said to be the "largest, handsomest, best flavored, and most productive rariety yet known." This strawberry is rendered more valuable from the circumstance (which is not the case with other kinds.) that every flower is perfect, producing a due proportion of stamens and psuls, and every blossom which expands is followed by a fruit which arrives at maturity. A pamphlet wite directions for cultivating given gratis.

Persons wishing to obtain a supply of plant of this delicious fruit can have them as early as the 15th mat. by leaving their names at the AMERICAN HOTEL in Burlington.
